

Police seal off Red Square Yeltsin backers to rally despite demonstration ban

Associated Press
MOSCOW — Police hauled away supporters of Boris Yeltsin and sealed off Red Square on Wednesday, the eve of a banned rally to defend the Russian republic leader from hard-liners' efforts to oust him.

A war of violence gripped this capital of eight million residents as authorities said they would stop the rally. Helicopters hovered over the city and armored vehicles stood by at a military base not far from the Kremlin.

"Don't shoot, brothers, we are of the same blood!" the radical newspaper Kuranty said in a front-page appeal to police and soldiers.

In Washington, the Bush administration in an unusual action reminded the Soviet Union of its commitment under the Helsinki accords to allow public demonstrations. As a signer of the 1975 accords, Moscow "reaffirmed the right of peaceful assembly and demonstrations," said State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler. However, restrictions on the right of peaceful assembly "are sometimes necessary for public safety and other legitimate grounds," she said.

Yeltsin, the popular chairman of the Russian federation parliament, faces a possible no-confidence vote at a congress of 1,063 deputies from across the largest and most populous of the 15 Soviet republics. He made no comment on the demonstration or the no-confidence move.

The move to oust him began last month after he accused Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev of rolling back democratic reforms and demanded his resignation. Yeltsin's supporters said Wednesday they would proceed with Thursday's rally on Manezh Square near the Kremlin, despite a three-week ban on street demonstrations imposed Monday by Gorbachev's Cabinet of Ministers.

Kurdish rebels capture air base

Associated Press

ZAKHO, Iraq — Kurdish rebels on Wednesday claimed they had seized a government-held air base and camp in northern Iraq, but said there were signs Saddam Hussein's forces were preparing for an assault on a key rebel-held city.

A statement from the Kurdistan Democratic Party said the Iraqi army was massing forces in Saddam's hometown of Tikrit to launch an attack on the northern oil city of Kirkuk, which was seized by the insurgents. The statement, sent to The Associated Press in Nicosia, Cyprus, by telex, could not be independently confirmed.

Saddam has been struggling to quell rebellions in the north and south that flared after his defeat by the allies in the Persian Gulf War. The fighting halted with a cease-fire a month ago.

President Bush said Wednesday it was unlikely Saddam will remain in power for long because the Iraqi people "are fed up with him."

"There's enough dissent and disorder but it appears the Iraqi citizens are trying to do something about this," he told reporters in Bethesda, Md. "We'll wait and see how it plays out but I think we'd have to put him down as fairly doubtful at this point."

Kurdish leaders reported gains in northern Iraq — but also heavy casualties. They said guerrillas overran an Iraqi air base near Kirkuk on Tuesday and captured two Soviet-made warplanes, a MiG-21 fighter and a Soviet-made Sukhoi bomber.

The rebels also said they seized a government camp at Faardiya, on the road from Dohuk to Mosul. They said the two installations were among the last that government forces controlled in northern Iraq.

States cut education funds; grim spring layoffs ahead

Associated Press

Cash-strapped school districts around the country have begun sending pink slips to tens of thousands of teachers, a grim spring ritual signaling the worst year for school layoffs in a decade as states slash spending.

Teacher contracts often stipulate that districts must notify teachers by a specified date in the spring — usually between mid-March and June — if they are in danger of not being rehired for the following fall.

Such "RIFs" — "reduction-in-force" notices — invariably far exceed the number of teachers who actually lose their jobs.

But given the magnitude of state and local budget problems, educators expect many thousands of this spring's layoff notices to stick.

"It's as tough a time as we've seen in the last decade," said Jewell Gould, director of research of the American Federation of Teachers, which represents some 750,000 teachers.

"From the numbers we've been seeing, conservatively, we're looking at 13 or 14 states where we expect to see teacher reductions of up to 5 percent."

Most Western and Southern states, where budgets are healthier and student enrollments still growing, are being spared layoffs.

Colorado is adding $70 million to its $1.2 billion state education budget. Idaho is hiring 1,000 more teachers as part of a drive to lower class sizes. Washington Gov. Booth Gardner's proposed budget boosts education spending by 12 percent.

In the South, Louisiana is in the midst of a drive begun in 1988 to lift teacher pay. Likewise, Arkansas and Georgia officials predict few, if any, teacher layoffs.

MTC to accommodate 1,000 more missionaries

ROMMYN SKIPPER
Universe Staff Writer

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints is planning to expand its main Missionary Training Center, located on the BYU campus in Provo, to accommodate an additional 1,000 missionaries, LDS Church officials said.

Representatives of the LDS Church met with the Provo Planning Commission Wednesday and received conditional approval for the proposed plans.

The expansion will result in three new buildings at the present MTC complex, a press release from the public affairs department of the LDS Church said.

The plans call for a new multi-purpose building for orientation meetings, devotionals, firesides, conferences and physical fitness activities. They also include two new four-story buildings. One will be a residence hall and the other an additional classroom building.

"It's in the planning stage," said Don LeFevre, director of public affairs for the LDS Church.

Scott Ward, the chairman of the planning commission, raised concerns about pedestrians with such a significant increase to the MTC population.

Richard Millet, business director for the MTC, said, "If we get new missionaries and can't handle the numbers we'll divide them in half and some may enter on Wednesday and some Thursday; but right now we can handle it. We want to cooperate and do whatever is necessary."

Lelund Gamette, Provo Community Development director, said because this is a unique building with a unique use, the MTC will not have to meet a city requirement to provide one parking space for every resident.

Although the number of missionaries in the MTC fluctuates from season to season, the total number is growing, LeFevre said. "More missionaries are accepting the call to serve, responding to the encouragement of the prophets over the years."

The current capacity of the MTC is 3,000, LeFevre said. The first phase of the MTC was built in 1976. It was used in conjunction with its predecessor, the Language Training Mission.

The MTC's first full year of operation was in 1977. There were 14,561 missionaries called that year, but they did not all enter the MTC, LeFevre said.

need to hear, they won't understand until they're experiencing the trials and joys of their missions. Therefore just tell them what you think they need to hear to get through the MTC," was the advice his children gave him, Bishop Pace said.

"Using that theory I'm going to speak to you about things I think you ought to be doing in however short the time is prior to going into the MTC."

Bishop Pace spoke of entering the MTC worthily, really having a testimony of the gospel, learning to recognize and rely on the spirit, and the excitement of what it is like to be a missionary. In speaking about the times a missionary may ask himself if a mission is really worth it, he told of an experience he had when he was at the MTC on a speaking assignment.

He said a young man came up to him, introduced himself and said, "I've wanted to meet you all of my life because you converted my mother and dad before I was born and they still talk about you."

"Believe me, nothing can buy the kind of joy I felt at that moment as well as the joy I felt when his parents and two older brothers and sisters were baptized."

In relating some of the experiences he had recently as he visited Nigeria, Ghana, Zimbabwe and South Africa, Bishop Pace told of the Ghanaian missionaries who were released from their missions when the LDS Church was forced to leave Ghana.

The LDS Church was able to return to the country 18 months after it was forced to leave. The 77 missionaries who had been serving before the "freeze" were then asked to fulfill the remainder of their missions.

Forty of the 77 were interviewed to determine worthiness and willingness to continue their missions. Out of those 40, only three will not be returning. Only one of those three is unworthy, he said.

Slain soldier's 'widow' held without bail

DETROIT — A woman accused of murdering her lover in a plot to collect insurance money just days after he returned from the Persian Gulf War was ordered held without bail Wednesday.

Defendant Toni Cato Riggs, 22, apparently was not legally married to the victim, Army Spc. Anthony Riggs, because she hadn't divorced a first husband, according to court records.

At an arraignment Wednesday, a judge entered an innocent plea on Ms. Riggs' behalf. She was charged with first-degree murder in the March 18 shooting of Riggs. Judge Robert K. Costello also ordered her held pending an April 5 hearing, over the objections of defense lawyer Athina Siringas.

Her 19-year-old brother, Michael Cato, was arraigned Tuesday and ordered held without bond. He also faces an April 5 hearing.

Siringas argued that Riggs was cooperating with authorities and should be freed on bond and also complained that Cato had given police two confessions, only one of which implicated his sister.

Riggs and Cato face mandatory life imprisonment if convicted.

Police defended themselves Wednesday against a lawyer's allegation that they forced a confession from Cato.

"Homicide investigators are aware of the rules concerning the interrogation and interviewing of suspects," said Inspector Gerald Stewart. "And we don't violate them."

Scharwzkopf, Bush disagreed on cease-fire

WASHINGTON — In an embarrassing public flap Wednesday, President Bush disputed Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf's claim to have urged further fighting to "reap great destruction" on Iraq's army at the time Bush ordered a cease-fire in the Persian Gulf War. Bush said there was "total agreement" that the time had come to end the war, but Schwarzkopf remembered it differently. Schwarzkopf, the highly acclaimed architect of the allied victory over Iraq, told an interviewer that history would second-guess Bush's decision, and he said the cease-fire had opened an escape route for fleeing Iraqi forces.

The White House and Pentagon moved swiftly to challenge the general's version of events, as related to television interviewer David Frost. In a written statement, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said Schwarzkopf had "raised no objection to terminating hostilities." Cheney said Schwarzkopf and Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, "were consulted and make the recommendation to me and to the president that we had achieved our military objectives."

Lawsuits might infringe on press freedom

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court was urged Wednesday to shield newspapers from damage suits by sources whose names were published after a promise of confidentiality. The plea drew sharp questioning from several justices and was challenged by one as "odd calculus."

The court, expected to decide the case by July, was told by John French, a lawyer for Minnesota's two largest newspapers, that freedom of the press is at stake. The opposing attorney, Elliot Rothenberg, said the newspapers are trying to place themselves above the law.

"A solemn promise was made" to his client, Dan Cohen, in 1982, Rothenberg said. And "it was not kept."

Cohen, a public relations man then associated with a Republican campaign for lieutenant governor, gave the newspapers a tip, on condition he not be identified, that a Democratic opponent had once been charged with shoplifting. Reporters promised him confidentiality, but they were overruled by editors who argued the public had the right to know the source was linked to the opposing campaign, and published his name. Cohen was subsequently fired from his advertising agency job and sued the newspapers.

88-year-old egg-eater beats cholesterol

He's no "Cool Hand Luke," but an 88-year-old man eats 25 soft-boiled eggs a day and still has low cholesterol, a doctor reported in a prestigious medical journal.

When Dr. Fred Kern Jr. heard about the man, he decided to tackle a medical mystery: How can some folks break all the dietary rules and still live to a ripe old age?

Kern, who studies cholesterol gallstones at the University of Colorado, learned about the elderly egg eater from mutual friends and immediately wanted to study him.

"I was just fascinated by him," Kern recalled. "I asked, 'How does this man have a normal cholesterol level? What happens to all that cholesterol?'"

What Kern found at work were two remarkably efficient biological mechanisms that kept cholesterol out of the man's bloodstream. He absorbed only a tiny portion of the cholesterol from his gastrointestinal tract, and most of that was converted into bile acids.

U.S. economists optimistic over upturn

WASHINGTON — The U.S. economy shrank at an annual rate of 1.6 percent in the final three months of 1990, a significantly smaller downturn than previously reported, as spending on the Persian Gulf military buildup helped to cushion the decline, the government said Wednesday.

The new Commerce Department report on the gross national product — the country's total output of goods and services — raised hopes that the current recession will indeed be short and shallow.

"We have seen the first tangible signs of a turnaround," treasury secretary Nicholas Brady told the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. He cited a big jump in consumer confidence following the end of the Persian Gulf War and February increases in sales of existing homes and new home construction.

While the administration is projecting growth returning quickly to levels above 3 percent a year, private economists were much more pessimistic, predicting a weak recovery because of the huge debts being carried by consumers, businesses and the federal government.

Newly proposed act to revise wetland laws

By E. SCOTT BAK
Universe Staff Writer

The American dream to own and improve one's property may be smashed by the federal government's Wetlands laws.

The government's Clean Water Act is designed to preserve wetlands for recreation and wildlife. The act, however, prevents landowners from digging, draining and building on land considered wetlands.

Utah's congressmen, farmers and land developers agree the wetland regulations are ambiguous and need revisions.

Rep. Bill Orton and Rep. James Hansen are endorsing a Comprehensive Wetlands Conservation Management Act to protect actual wetlands but allow property right preservation and land development for border-line land plots.

The newly proposed act requires water, soil and vegetation to exist during normal growing seasons before the land can be defined as wetlands. The bill will allow more freedom for farmers to ranch and farm their land and provides financial compensation for farmers restricted from farming their land.

The Utah Farm Bureau supports legislation to redefine wetland regulations and has asked Utah's congressional delegation to support a revised bill. Mark Nelson, a representative for Utah State University's Agriculture Extension Service, said wetland regulations are positive for preserving wildlife and animal habitat but create unique problems for some farmers.

"Farmers who own and farmed their land for years around the Great Salt Lake basin are prevented from farming their land, now that flood waters have receded," Nelson said.

Farmers owning wetlands are only able to make improvements such as ponds, ditches and roads after receiving permission from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Bob Sennett, spokesman for Utah's Soil Conservation Service, said the Clean Water Act (nicknamed Swamp Buster Act and Wetlands Act) is designed to provide disincentive to farmers wanting to convert wetlands into fertile ground. "Farmers who comply with federal regulations to leave wetlands untouched, are eligible for federal programs such as farm loans, milk support and price support programs," Sennett said.

"The stipulation for farmers receiving federal assistance is that they must not convert wetlands into fertile land. If landowners don't comply with the Clean Water Act, they forfeit their eligibility for federal programs," he said.

Ceremonies praise start of museum

By SHARISA STAPLES
Universe Staff Writer

Ceremonies commemorating the groundbreaking for the Museum of Fine Arts took place Tuesday morning in the de Jong Concert Hall, HFAC.

President Elaine L. Jack, of the Relief Society for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, President Rex E. Lee and James A. Mason, dean of the College of Fine Arts and Communications, each spoke at the meeting.

Major donors, state and local government representatives and university officials gathered for the groundbreaking. President Ordeith G. Kapp, of the Young Women's program, and Elder L. Tom Perry of the Council of the Twelve Apostles of the LDS Church were also in attendance.

Representatives of the Board of Trustees.

"We are breaking ground for extended educational opportunities in this new museum," President Jack said. "The benefits of a university museum are far-reaching for an individual's learning experience."

President Jack said the quiet of the museum allows people to contemplate and analyze things away from our fast-paced world.

"We need to balance our fast-paced culture with the humane and expose ourselves to the attitudes prevalent in a museum to improve our world," President Jack said. "In a museum, we can expose ourselves to the beauties of this world."

President Lee said the ceremonies were held not to commemorate a building, but the celebration of art. He said the museum, already under construction, will play a unique role in the learning process of the university.

"A museum is a symbol of peace and a house of art," Mason said. "Students and visitors will benefit from the cultural commitment of the museum."

The four-level museum is scheduled to be completed in two years, he said.

A display of the museum's highlights is now being shown in the B.F. Larsen Gallery, HFAC. It includes examples from BYU's permanent collection and the arts to be in the museum.

"The most remarkable aspect of the museum is it will be built, created and maintained entirely on private funds," President Lee said.

Elder Abrea explains 'one heart'

By CAMIE OAKS
Universe Staff Writer

The first step toward reaching the true interpretation and application of the idea "one heart and one mind" is to recognize the importance of each individual as a child of God, which we all are, said Elder Angel Abrea.

Elder Abrea, a member of the First Quorum of the Seventy of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, spoke to students Tuesday in the ELWC Memorial Lounge to introduce the theme of Lamanite Week, which will continue through Saturday.

To define "heart," Elder Abrea quoted a statement by Delbert Stapely, which says, "The word 'heart' is used in scripture as the core of life and strength; hence it includes mind, spirit and soul, and one's entire emotional nature and understanding."

"The word 'heart' is also in many statements regarded as the central source of one's mental faculties or capacities.

For example, Proverbs 23:7 states, 'For as he thinketh in his heart, so is he,' Elder Abrea said.

In reference to the other half of the theme for Lamanite Week "one heart and one mind," Elder Abrea quoted Elder Bruce R. McConkie's definition of the mind as the part of the body that perceives, feels, wills and thinks.

After establishing some fundamentals regarding the importance of heart and mind, Elder Abrea discussed how to attain a unity or oneness with the Lord.

"The gospel of Jesus Christ most definitely is the means by which man can become more like God. It is impossible to become one with God if we are not first one with our brothers and sisters in the world," he said.

In the Doctrine and Covenants,

Elder Angel Abrea, speaking at a devotional for Lamanite Week Tuesday, told students to strive for unity with the Lord.

God's eternal command to his people is, "Be one; and if ye are not one ye are not mine."

Elder Abrea said, "If and when perfect unity exists among the saints, they accomplish the Lord's purposes on earth and gain their own exaltation in the life to come.

"We must become of one heart and one mind, in order to fully enjoy the blessings we anticipate as we strive to gain eternal life," Elder Abrea said.

We bow our heads and give pranks

With April Fools' Day just around the weekend, we reflect to last semester, when a communications professor mourned with his class the death of BYU's collective sense of humor. A number of his students who work at The Daily Universe, however, refused to believe it. Like Jim Morrison, Bruce Lee and Elvis, we argued, fun and humor aren't dead at BYU — just waiting for the right audience before making their comebacks.

During this semester, however, we, too, began wearing our black armbands. BYU truly seemed to be a prankless society.

The coffin's first nail came early in the semester when Kevin Woolley wrote a letter to the editor about BYUSA Selections, Brett Blake and cloning.

UNIVERSE OPINION

Far from being the exception to an otherwise wild and kooky, yet responsible, campus, Woolley-gate is painfully characteristic of our uptight university. (Letters to the editor last week leveled threats and invitations to leave town at Dallas Scholes after he wrote a humorous piece about Provo being boring — and it was funny.)

One Universe reporter tells a story of a friend from Washington D.C. visiting BYU for the first time. The campus is beautiful, she commented after spending several days at BYU. But she had never seen so many 20-year-olds who thought they were 40. Her prescription: "Lighten up."

Another nail was slammed in humor's coffin when University Police Chief Robert Kelshaw said in the Universe that dumb, foolish things are in most cases against the law. This prompted a professor to write that it was finally official — fun is out at BYU. "A secret committee meets weekly deep in the bowels of the ASB to explain regulations that stifle even harmless — but probably dumb and foolish — fun: Painted faces, gaudy foam wigs and banners at athletic events, for example."

The professor also cited the strict rules regulating BYUSA's selections — "campus election committees have installed regulations when it appeared anyone was having fun doing campaign things."

We admit this evidence against BYU's collective sense of humor is only anecdotal but is uneasily close to conclusive. It was with heads hung low we were ready to close the coffin for good.

But in the middle of this glum, foggy sobriety we were pleased Wednesday to see a light. And we immediately took off our black armbands long enough to salute the Student Review for its "Student Enquirer." Along the lines of "The Harvard Lampoon" and the "Off the Wall Street Journal," who, 10 years ago, announced to the world that Christianity had acquired the Jewish faith in a hostile takeover, the Student Enquirer was able to poke intelligent fun at BYU. (We envy the issue, but not the uptight response it will surely generate.)

The Student Enquirer is great evidence that pranksters are alive and well at BYU. We hope they thrive and that their senses of humor are contagious.

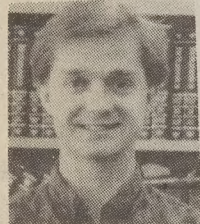

Friedrich Nietzsche said, "Perhaps I know best why it is man alone who laughs; he alone suffers so deeply that he had to invent laughter."

At BYU we like to think that we have things a little bit better than the rest of the world. But let's never think our suffering is not so deep that we can do away with good laughs and the pranks that go along with them.

And, please, be responsible.

by Hans Wild

I am going to graduate this April, and I am not going to be married. That is just incredible! I have made it through four years of BYU, and I am still single.

My mom says "marry Hans, marry." My mission president told me "marry Elder Wild, marry." My bishop says every Sunday, "marry Hans, marry." Do I feel pressure?

Actually I wonder why I am not married. I feel I am a normal, average guy. I go to church on Sunday, get rather good grades, I love sports, and I'm liked by a few people, at least by my brother and my dog.

So what's wrong? I go to the dating/marriage prep Sunday school class every week, taught by the bishop's wife, and learn all about the hows and what nots of the dating game and marriage, but still it just doesn't seem to work for me.

Maybe I'm just a nerd. Girls don't want to date nerds. I could be single for the rest of my life. When I call my mom on the phone she acts like she is waiting to hear the big news. She's waiting to hear the words

"Yes, mom I finally found her, and we are engaged to be married this May." She is probably going to have to wait for some time to come though to hear those happy, magical words.

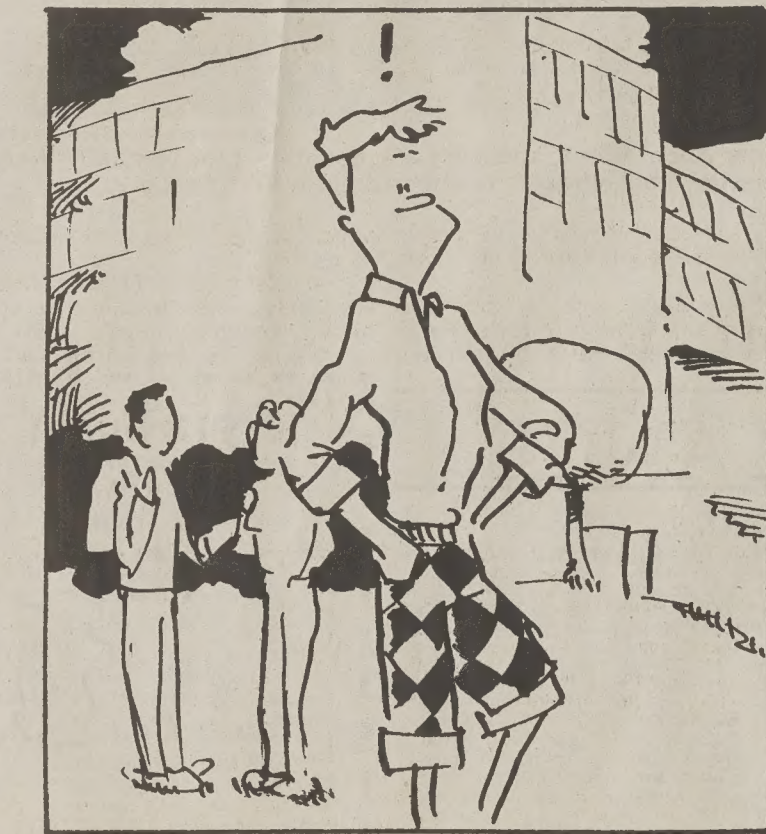

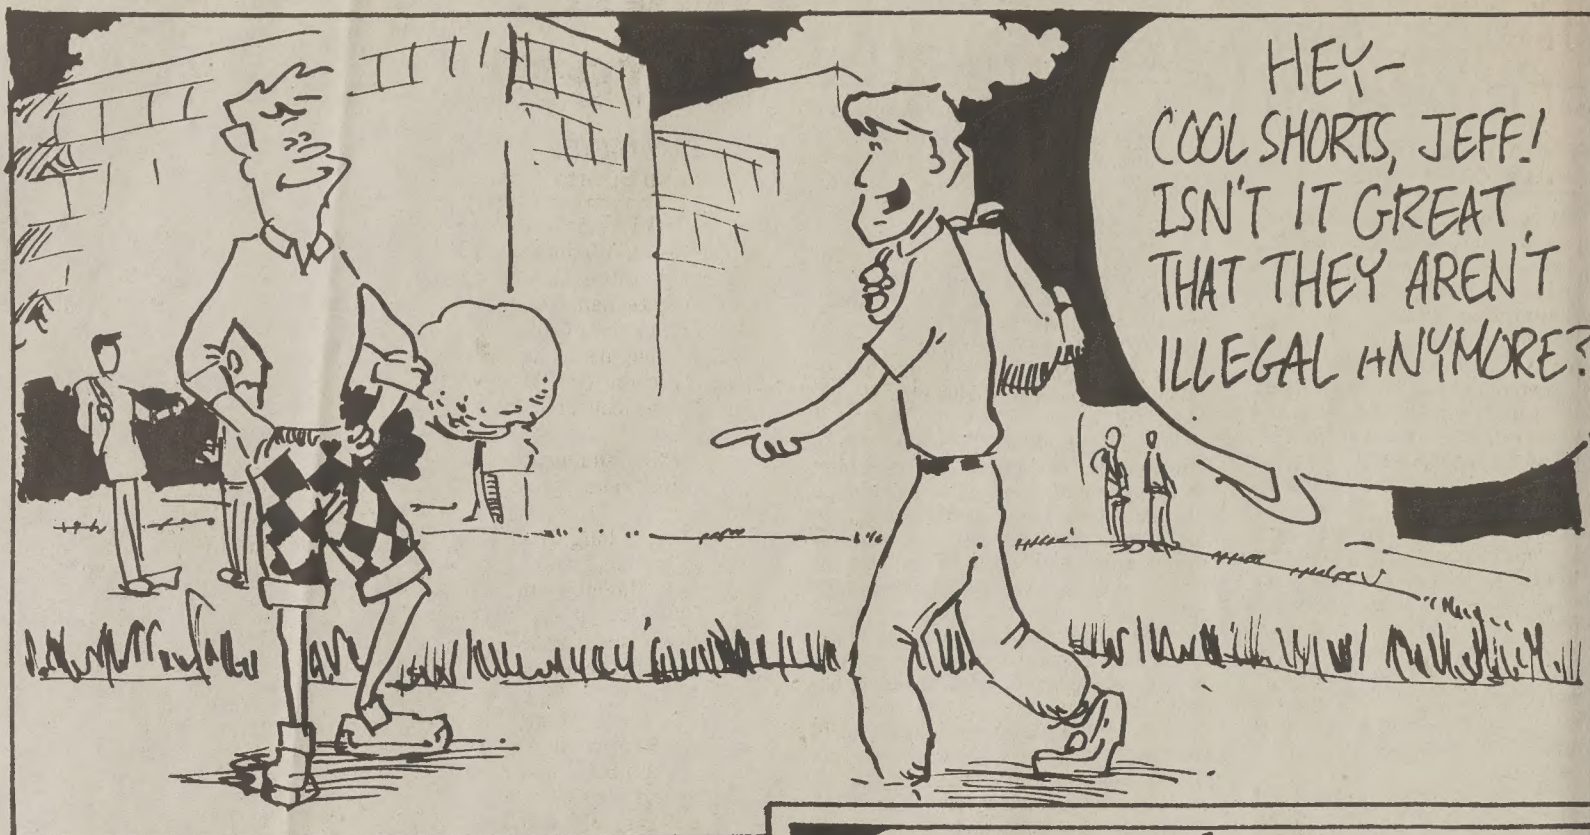

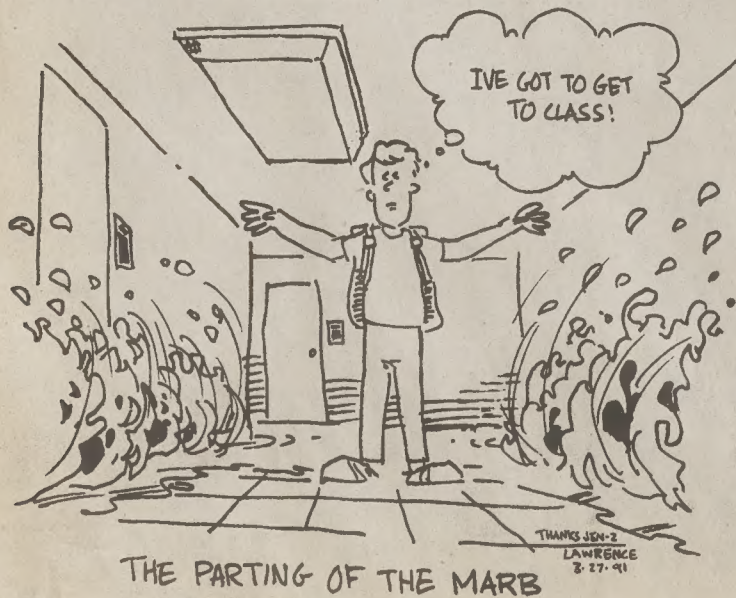

I do date, and I have had some girlfriends, but I must scare them away or something. You can ask girls to get married on the second date, can't you? Things can move very quickly especially here in Provo. So maybe there is hope for me after all. I can do the two-month engagement, graduate in April and get married in May.

Here at BYU 35 percent of all the guys are married and I'm a senior so I better not let time pass me by. I'm going to start putting ads in the newspaper, calling those love lines and go dancing at the Palace. I could be able to work something out.

I will get married someday though, 93 percent of all people get married. So, I should kind of take it easy and wait for the right one to come along. My dad might tell me he wants grandkids, but there's plenty of time for that. I'll find her soon enough.

I know that I shouldn't feel all this pressure to get married. In fact, only here in "Happy Valley" do people get married so early in their lives. In the real world I'm normal and not in the minority. I'm young, the average age in the real world is 25 for men to get married and I haven't reached that yet. I have my whole life ahead of me. I should get a job, be secure financially and then get married.

Yeah, that sounds pretty good.

effort has been hindered by the continuing dependence on American leadership and financial support. I'm not at all trying to boast of this support. I too wish that the Church was not known as American throughout the world, but until countries like Brazil can support their part of the Church on their own they should just be thankful that the Americans and others are there.

Try activation

To the Editor:
I am writing in response to the article written by Glauco Luiz Ortolano about the "American Church" in Latin America.

He claimed two reasons for this age. First, because we have the booths representing the U.S. Army, Marines, and Air Force here at BYU. Second, because the CIA comes here to recruit. My question to Glauco this; How many people in Latin America know about the three recruiting booths here at BYU. I think that Glauco fails to realize that there are thousands of U.S. Armed Forces recruiters throughout this nation, high school and university campus.

There are two reasons that church is looked upon as an "American Church". First of all, every thousands of young Americans wear the streets of Latin America preaching the gospel of Jesus Christ. Secondly, our church was restored to earth by an American.

The real problem facing the Church in Latin America right now is that inactivation. If we could activate half of the inactive families, think all the prospective missionaries would have. That would allow the country to become self-sufficient in their missionary needs and reduce the number of American missionaries in Latin America. As for the other reason we are looked upon as an "American Church," we just can't do any other but teach the people of universality of the gospel of Jesus Christ.

I hope that Glauco will reevaluate his remarks and try to build the image of the Church instead of tearing it down with hasty and unwarranted accusations.

Modest beauty

To the Editor:
I would like to give deserved recognition to those beautiful women who competed in the recent BYU Mel Ball looking stunning, graceful, and modest. They were representatives of our school, church, and ideals, showing that it is possible to be glamorous, talented and beautiful without succumbing to the worst standards of immodesty. Unfortunately, there were those who were not so committed to standing out in a "peculiar" way as they were to fit in a worldly way.

To the former: you all deserve plaudits!

My red tape

To the Editor:

After graduation the alumni association and my college will soon be asking for donations. I desire to contribute to the school so that future students will have the opportunity to attend BYU. I was able to traverse the many petition, committees and policies (red tape) during my college career, so I would like to indicate to BYU a few policies I have established for requests for donations.

1. A formal petition should be sent to my appropriations committee. They will decide whether the petition merits approval.
2. If the petition is approved, a four-part application form will be sent to the petitioning party. It must be signed and notarized and sent to my application review board.
3. Please remember to include a $10 processing fee.
4. The board will carefully review the application. Response will take anywhere from one week to 10 years.
5. The review board will send notification of acceptance or denial of the requested donation.
6. If approved the donation will be made within 12 months of the date of approval.
7. If denied, then the requesting party must wait at least 12 months before starting the process over again.

Thank you for your cooperation.

BYU not CIA arm

To the Editor:

I believe Glauco Ortolano has blown out of proportion the so-called "linkage" between BYU and the CIA. He thinks it strange to have U.S. military recruiters on our campus. When compared to other college campuses, it is obvious that no significant recruitment is going on at BYU. In fact, there seemed to be a much stronger recruiting effort at my high school.

As far as the Church being too American, I agree, but whose fault is that? As a missionary in the Sao Paulo North Mission I had the opportunity to work in the Church offices. What I observed was a great effort to de-Americanize the Church there. This

Inner vessel code

To the Editor:

I find it interesting that many of those writing letters regarding the honor code equate violation of the Dress and Grooming Standards with violation of the code of conduct contained in this document (see 3/20 Blair letter to the editor). As presented to me by my bishop, the Dress and Grooming Standards govern students' outward appearance. The code of conduct, on the other hand, refers to standards of morality, observance of the Word of Wisdom, etc.

Those who assume that dress and grooming violators are also automatically violators of the moral/lifestyle standards in the code are making a faulty, unsupported assumption. Outward appearance cannot be equated with inward righteousness (remember, "the Lord looketh not upon the outward appearance").

However, since the Dress and Grooming Standards are easier to police, those who violate these rules are often presented as students of low moral character. I think that the status of our own "inner vessels" should be of more concern to us than anyone else's fashion statement. To those preoccupied with the outward appearance of others, I say take care of the beam in your own eye before concerning yourself with the mote in another's.

Heidi Baker
Los Altos, Calif.

Style of honesty

To the Editor:

When I came to BYU I signed the code and knew I would have to obey it. Because when a person signs an agreement I think they should keep their word. When the temperature is above 50 degrees some guys wear shorts above the knee and girls wear dresses and shorts above the knee. Many say they are still modest but this has nothing to do with what they have agreed to do in the dress code. Some say I am forced to sign it. If this is true any time you sign a contract you don't need to keep it because you

Stanford takes NIT; Sooners' coach ejected

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Kenny Ammann scored 22 points, including five 3-pointers, as Stanford survived a 15-0 Oklahoma run following the ejection of Sooners coach Billy Tubbs to win its first National Invitation Tournament with a 78-72 victory Wednesday night.

Oklahoma opened its biggest lead of the game, 46-37, early in the second half, but Stanford rallied with a 23-10 spree to move ahead 60-56. Deshon Wingate, held to one point in the first half, had 10 points and Ammann eight during the spurt, including two 3-pointers.

The Sooners pulled to 70-67 on two free throws by Brent Price with 1:40 left, but Stanford clinched the victory by making eight of 12 free throws down the stretch.

Andrew Vlahov scored 14 points, while Wingate and John Patrick each had 13 for Stanford (20-13). Price scored 26 points and Bryan Sallier 24 for Oklahoma (20-15), but their teammates combined for only 22.

Adam Keefe, Stanford's leading scorer with a 21.8 average, finished with 12 points but had only two in the final 29 minutes.

Keefe was named MVP of the tournament.

The first half was a wild affair that ended with Oklahoma leading 39-35 and Tubbs in the locker room.

He was ejected for arguing with the referees with 4:38 left in the half and the score tied at 26. Tubbs was angry because he thought the referees failed to call a walking violation on Keefe before he passed to Vlahov, who was then fouled while going for a layup.

After referee Mickey Crowley gave Tubbs a technical, the coach continued to argue and was ejected by referee Pete Pavia.

After Vlahov made his two free throws, Patrick sank all four free throws resulting from the two technical fouls on Tubbs. Stanford retained possession and Ammann quickly hit a 3-pointer, giving the Cardinals nine points in nine seconds and a 35-26 lead with 4:27 remaining in the half.

But with assistant Mike Anderson running the team, Oklahoma struck back with a 13-0 run to close the half, with Price getting the last nine points on two baskets, a 3-pointer and a pair of free throws. The Sooners extended their run to 15-0 by scoring the first basket of the second half, then opened a 9-point lead before Stanford rallied.

Stanford started quickly, moving out to an 11-4 lead as Ammann and Vlahov each got two baskets. But Oklahoma came back to tie it at 26 behind the play of Sallier and Price, who each had 17 points in the half. Price scored only eight points and Sallier none in the Sooners' semifinal win over Colorado.

Shaun Vandiver scored 34 points as Colorado beat Massachusetts 98-91 in the third-place game.

Men's tennis team defeats Air Force

By JODY NIELSEN
Universe Sports Writer

The BYU men's tennis team returned home Wednesday night with a victory over the Air Force Academy, 5-3, despite bad weather conditions throughout their California road trip.

The Cougars were scheduled to play Nevada on Tuesday but the match was canceled because of the weather.

After the singles matches against Air Force were over BYU was leading, 4-2.

"It was a long match," said BYU coach Jim Osborne.

Curtis Magleby and Will Calhoun were the No. 3 doubles team that gave the Cougars their fifth point in order to win the match, they defeated their opponents, 2-6, 6-3, 7-5.

Jimmy Higgins and Herman Vandecasteele were up at No. 2 doubles, but by then BYU had won the match so they did not continue.

Vandecasteele appeared at No. 1 singles and beat Dan Oosterhaus, 6-3, 6-3.

Chingas took an impressive win in three sets, 6-1, 4-6, 6-3. Chingas was down 0-3 in the third set but proceeded to win the next six games to take the match.

"It was a good WAC win for us," Osborne said. "It should help us in the seeding for the WAC tournament."

He said Air Force was very strong in their return of serve, "I'm proud of our guys, they pulled it out in a tough situation."

The Cougars were scheduled to play Cal-Berkeley on Saturday but the match was rained out and played on Wednesday after the AFA match.

"Berkeley is very strong," Osborne said. "They won all singles matches and so we didn't play doubles."

"It is hard to be on the court from 9-2:30 p.m. and have 45 minutes to rest and be on the court again," Osborne said.

Quote of the day: "When they got humiliated in that game last year, they had to live with that for a year. They're going to be as up for this game as they possibly could be." — UNLV coach Jerry Tarkanian on last year's 103-73 win in the championship game with Duke and their upcoming rematch this Saturday in Indianapolis, Ind.

Golf teams fairs well in tourney

By SHAN N.S. NAKAMOTO
Universe Sports Writer

After winning two consecutive golf tournaments in Mexico, the BYU men's golf team came up empty after competing in a couple of back-to-back tournaments in California. The Cougars placed fifth in the Fresno Lexus Golf Classic in Fresno, Calif., on Saturday and eighth in the Western Intercollegiate Golf Tournament in Monterey, Calif., on Wednesday.

"We were in a good position to win the tournaments, but couldn't quite pull it off," said Bruce Brockbank, BYU assistant golf coach. He said the Cougars played well in tough situations.

There were many good teams in the tournament, said BYU golfer Mike Weir. He said the team got some valuable experience playing against good teams on courses they were unfamiliar with and under adverse weather conditions.

BYU had little time to think about its loss in Fresno. On Monday the Cougars competed in the first round of the Western Intercollegiate tournament at the Port Ord Bayonet Course. However, because of bad weather conditions, the second and final rounds were played at the Rancho Canada West Course, Tuesday and Wednesday.

UNLV finished the tournament in first place with 879 total team shots. Tulsa followed with 882; Oregon, 890; Nevada, 893; Washington, 895; New Mexico State, 899; Pacific, 900 and BYU with 902 total strokes.

BYU was led by Joe Summerhays and Ramon Brobio who finished with 225. Mike Weir had 226; Ryan Rhees, 229; John Johnson, 234 and Eddie Heinen had 235 total shots.

Arizona won the Fresno Lexus Golf Classic with 1,088 strokes. Southern California followed Arizona with 1,097; Fresno State, 1,111; Tulsa, 1,117; BYU and Texas-El Paso each had 1,120 strokes.

BYU had the second best team score of 364 after the first round of the tournament. The Cougar's second round of 367 strokes dropped them into third place. The final round for BYU was even more tragic as the Cougars shot one of the lowest rounds of the tournament with 389 strokes.

Coach Karl Tucker said the team did a lot of good things in the tournament.

He said the last round hurt the team's chances of doing better.

Netters meet Duke today

By JODY NIELSEN
Universe Sports Writer

The 13th-ranked BYU women's tennis team will put their talents to the test today as they take on sixth-ranked Duke, the highest ranked team the Cougars have faced so far this season.

"Duke is an exceptionally good team and we'll have to play exceptionally well just to stay with them," said BYU coach Ann Valentine.

BYU will travel to Chapel Hill, North Carolina, where they will take on 25th-ranked South Carolina and North Carolina Friday and Saturday, respectively.

This is the Cougars second road trip of the season. Their first road trip was to Oklahoma and Texas earlier this season where they had a record of 2-2. The Cougars season record is 14-2 and they have a perfect 12-0 record at home.

Valentine is concerned about the adjustment needed to play outdoors under the often windy conditions found on the East coast, since all of the Cougars' home matches have been indoors.

"The wind can sometimes play havoc with the game, especially when you aren't used to playing outdoors," she said.

In the new Volvo rankings Jennifer Holmes was ranked 45th in the nation in singles and Evica Koljanin ranked 43rd.

Holmes and Koljanin have traded the No. 1 position on the team this season.

Planetarium shows top commercials

By RUSSELL T. TAYLOR
Universe Staff Writer

The VCR age has allowed television viewers to fast forward through commercials, and cable systems allow couch potatoes to flip stations at will during commercials, but commercial fans can see the world's CLIO award-winning commercials at the Hansen Planetarium in Salt Lake City.

The show is a solid half-hour of television commercials, including the best ads from the United States and other countries around the world.

"We have taken the best of the CLIO award-winning commercials worldwide and condensed them into 30 minutes of humorous and heart-warming fun," said Doug Lowe, Hansen Planetarium public relations director.

"This year is the best show we have ever offered. In the past years there has not been such top to bottom quality in all the categories like this one. This year includes some of the most humorous commercials I have ever seen," he said.

CLIO awards are given in categories such as product presentation, direction, humor, music and writing. Awards are given to national and local companies.

Differences in size of budget and market split up nominees into categories for national, regional and state awards. "We have cut some of the national award winners due to the fact that our patrons have seen them so many times. Less viewed commercials such as international, regional and local advertisements fill the majority of the show," he said.

One of the most popular commercials is one from Brazil about a bank pleading for an end to the deforestation of the Amazon rain forest. The sound of chain saws is heard, and then a tree is cut down. When the sap pours out, it is blood red, signifying the death of trees with no place for the wildlife to live, Lowe said.

McDonald's probably has the most heart-warming commercial, Lowe said. "There is a voice singing a ballad while a young boy is standing in right field in a baseball park. A fly ball is hit to him, and the coaches and players are worried that they are about to lose a close game because the boy is not a very good player, but he catches the ball," Lowe said.

The CLIO awards are shown free, as part of a double-feature bonus, to those who purchase tickets to any of the regularly scheduled science and laser programs at the planetarium, Lowe said.

"Kids enjoy the CLIO's as much as adults do. They are the most sophisticated television watchers since they grow up with it," Lowe added. The commercials are censored to fit the culture of Utah so no one will be offended, said Von Del Chamberlain, director of Hansen Planetarium.

Pres. Lee defends U.S. legal system

By GEOFFREY M. THATCHER
Universe Staff Writer

President Rex E. Lee addressed Tuesday evening's pre-law banquet saying there are opportunities for service in a legal profession that is misunderstood by the public.

Prospective law students listened to President Lee answer a question he is often asked: "How can you be a lawyer and a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints?"

President Lee said as long as lawyers follow two rules they will be able to balance their personal values with their profession.

"A lawyer can't lie," is the first rule. The second is "a lawyer can't permit the client to lie." President Lee said it is unfortunate all lawyers don't follow the two rules, but "nonetheless, it's a rule."

President Lee said it's not the profession that's unethical.

"There are positive opportunities for service in the law profession," he said.

'Amazing Kozinski'

Judge to judge judges

By GEOFFREY M. THATCHER
Universe Staff Writer

An appellate judge dubbed by a magazine article as "The Amazing Kozinski" will speak to students today at 11 a.m. in 303 JRCB.

Judge Alex Kozinski of the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals is the "hottest" speaker in the country, said Mike Reason, president of the Federalist Society, which is sponsoring the lecture.

"It's amazing that he is coming," Reason said. Kozinski is famous and controversial in law circles for his said. President Lee gave examples of experienced lawyers helping out less experienced lawyers. "The adversarial element (in law) is what people question," he said.

In some cases the legal system may fail, but it's the "best system any civilized society has come up with," said President Lee.

He said defending a client guilty of car theft when he was an inexperienced lawyer helped him to understand the role of the lawyer. President Lee said his client told him "Yes, I stole the car, and then I drove it across the state line." President Lee immediately told him, "You're guilty."

When his client told President Lee he wanted to plead not guilty President Lee told him he couldn't represent him.

After talking with his superiors, President Lee said he learned that any defendant, guilty or not, has the constitutional right to test the system.

views of the judge's role in interpreting the law and of the government's role in people's lives, Reason said.

Kozinski is featured on the front cover of the March issue of "California Lawyer." Kozinski said in the article, "I have pretty strong feelings about the Bill of Rights because I believe the real danger and real abuses in society come from the government."

Reason said Kozinski will speak on the role of judges according to the Constitution and will take questions from students for 30 minutes.

All students are invited to attend the free lecture.

Why Stephanie Olsen took Independent Study:

The Independent Study program has been a lifesaver for me. I was about 20 credits away from graduation from BYU, and with a husband who was a full-time student and two young children, I honestly questioned whether or not I would be able to finish. By enrolling in courses through Independent Study, I was able to complete my last courses and graduate in August. The Independent Study program enabled me to take the classes I needed to graduate without the worries and difficulties of leaving my home and family.

UVCC center may be funded

Election to settle 'sandwich' tax

By ROGER ELLIS
Universe Staff Writer

County commissioners officially stated their intent to implement a 1 percent restaurant tax if the special bond election passes on April 9 — if there still is a bond election.

Gov. Norman Bangert vetoed the bill that provided planning money for the proposed special events center at Utah Valley Community College. The bond election was called to provide Utah County's share of the money once the center is designed.

County Commissioner Malcolm Beck said the governor is calling for the funding to be approved in a special session of the legislature in April. The governor will send the commissioners a letter stating that intention.

The bill was vetoed because it contained other funding measures the governor did not approve of. Beck said the UVCC facility is a high-priority item, and the election will still be held if the county receives the governor's letter of assurance within the next few days.

Ray Beckham, a member of the citizen's group looking into the center, said they have also been assured by the legislature and Bangert that the money to plan the multi-purpose center will be made available in the special session of the legislature.

After the center is planned, the state is expected to provide $10 million for construction of a physical education facility at UVCC. Utah County must provide $7.7 million in order to upgrade the facility to a special events center. Several people at Wednesday's commission meeting were upset because of the proposed restaurant tax, saying it unfairly attacked fast-food restaurants while letting convenience stores off the hook.

Commissioner Gary Herbert agreed it was unfair to not include the convenience stores, but that the tax should still be implemented. Herbert said work should be done to make sure the stores are included in the future instead of not implementing the bill as it is now.

Orton seeks to equalize funding for education

By JENNIFER DERMODY
Universe Staff Writer

A bill designed to equalize federal funding for education between states was introduced Thursday to both the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives.

Rep. Bill Orton, D-Utah, introduced the Educational Equity Act of 1991, which is designed to change "the federal funding formula that has resulted in Utah receiving the lowest amount of federal education funds per pupil of any state in the nation," David Saybolt, legislative counsel for Orton, said.

The bill was cosponsored by Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, and Rep. Wayne Owens, D-Utah.

"Federal education funding discriminates against rural states like Utah," Orton said.

"This measure will go a long way toward ensuring that our students receive the support they need to keep education strong in Utah."

Bob Sevigny, legislative counsel for Orton, said the Educational Equity Act of 1991 would require funds to be allocated on an "average per pupil" base throughout the whole country.

"An interim report prepared by the Department of Education revealed that Utah was last in receiving federal education funding in six of the 11 major education programs," Saybolt said.

Sevigny said the current formula for deciding how much a state receives in federal education funding is based on U.S. Census information.

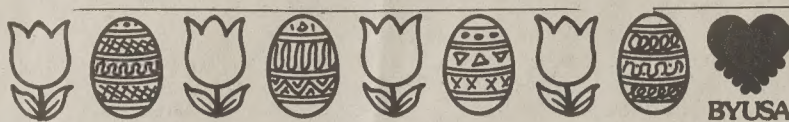

"The census material is old and out of date. This clearly hurts Utah in that it doesn't show the rapid growth rate in Utah," Sevigny said.

Sevigny said under the current formula the range of funding is extreme.

He said Alaska receives around $960 per student while Utah receives around $130 per student.

Sevigny said this bill will benefit other states as well as Utah.

"Things have changed a lot and the formula hasn't kept pace. This will force Congress to recognize the crisis in education in this country."

I don't like pressure.

Especially not from salespeople. That's why my fiancé and I went to Wilson's. They weren't afraid to let us shop around. They taught us completely and politely how to recognize quality and prices. After all our comparing (including those "wholesale" deals) I don't know why anyone wouldn't buy at Wilson's. It's where the smart money buys.
